"It is evident that this parish family is alive, growing and doing well by your enthusiastic response and your obvious love for this building and your parish home."

Bishop Gregory Aymond, Catholic Diocese of Austin

LOCATION Round Rock, Texas
 AREA 36,000 sf
 COST $9,200,000
 ARCHITECT The Wallace Group

A new sanctuary for the St. William Parish of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Austin was constructed to accommodate the rapidly growing Catholic community in the area. The new building increased worship service capacity from 600 seats at the church's previous facility to 1,500 seats at the new sanctuary, with a planned future expansion to seat another 1,000.

The classical Spanish style of the building is underlain with modern, structural steel framework to achieve daring barrel vaults that cross below a central dome at the altar, minimizing the need for interior columns that would obstruct parishoners' views.
